Population studies show incidence of FASD as high as 4.8%

Prevention efforts are needed!

Over 400 conditions co-occur with FASD

Accurate assessments are needed!

It would take 170 years to diagnose those living with FASD

Increased diagnostic capacity is needed!

Less than 10% of people with FASD can live independently

Lifelong, family-focused supports are needed!

The average life expectancy of a person with FASD – 34 years

We can do better!

Think FASD! Use FASD-Informed Practice!

September 9, 2017 is International FASDay

FASD and Behaviour....

We are taught that behaviour is learned, deliberate, manipulative, and responsive to discipline, but with FASD it is often reactive, impulsive, immature and becomes worse with consequences

Think FASD!
